NGORONGORO CRATER

NGORONGORO CRATER

Often called the eighth natural wonders of the world .The Ngorongoro Crater is the largest intact crater in the world. About 2 million years ago the Ngorongoro volcano erupted, and its walls collapsed. The volcano floor sank to create a natural enclosure with its 600m tall walls. Now at over 19 Kilometer wide, Ngorongoro crater is filled with great areas of Acacia forest, hippo filled swamp and open grasslands. These different habitats contains over 30,000 animals including elephants, warthogs, flamingos, magnificent birdlife the rare black rhinoceros, and all of the predators cats.

The opulent crater is also home to:
The Mighty Horned Beast
The King of the Jungle
The African Bush Elephant
The Grant Zebra
The Laughing Hyena

TARANGIRE RIVER

TARANGIRE NATIONAL PARK

Tarangire National Park is almost 30,000sq km in size and is probably best known for the its huge number of elephants and baobab trees. The name of the park comes from the Tarangire River which crosses through the park. Tarangire is especially spectacular during the dry season (June - Novembe) as wildlife concentrations rival that Serengeti (since enormous population of elephants and other animals are drawn to the Tarangire River as their only source of water). With its varied habitats and permanent water in the Tarangire River the park is home to over 2,000 elephant and 500 bird specie.

The palatial park is also home to:

- The King of The Jungle
- The African Bush Elephant
- The Grant Zebra
- The Greyhounds of The Desert
- The Maasai Giraffe

ROOF OF AFRICA

MOUNT KILIMANJARO

Mount Kilimanjaro is Africa's highest mountain at 5,895m above sea level. It is also highest free-standing mountain above sea level in the world.
